OVERVIEW

KEYper Systems is not intended to be assigned a Public IP Address or made directly publicly accessible on the internet. We strongly discourage this use of our products due to the security concerns, especially if you have personal or sensitive data on the systems or its network. There are safe and secure means to configure our products for online availability and it's the system owners responsibility to follow and maintain appropriate security controls. We want to reemphasize our hardening guidelines and give you the opportunity to discuss secure ways of achieving your operational objectives.

NEXT STEPS

If you wish to keep your system internet facing, you should refer to our system hardening guide linked in the references section below to harden your product. In any case we always recommend, however you use your system, that you keep your product up to date, use secure passwords and PINs appropriate to the application, and where applicable use firewalls and antivirus applications, especially if it is networked, as you would with any device containing a Windows PC.
